Reasons to Consider PrEP

If you are HIV negative and can answer “YES” to any of these questions, PrEP may be right for you.

- ✓ Do you think you are at a high risk of getting HIV?
- ✓ Should you be using condoms more often?
- ✓ Have you had an STI in the past six months?
- ✓ Are you dating and having sex with an HIV-positive partner?
- ✓ Have you shared needles for injection drug use, tattooing or piercing?
- ✓ Have you had unprotected sex with someone whose HIV status is unknown?
- ✓ Are you sexually active with multiple partners and been prescribed post-exposure prophylaxis (PEP) within the past year more than once?

Pre-Exposure Prophylaxis

Pre-exposure prophylaxis, or PrEP, is a way for you to reduce your risk of HIV infection.

It's a one pill per day medication meant to be used regularly with other prevention options.

If you think that PrEP might be right for you, we can work with you to reduce your HIV risk.

Post-Exposure Prophylaxis

Post-exposure prophylaxis, or PEP, is an emergency medicine that must be taken as soon as possible after a one-time encounter to reduce your risk of HIV infection.

If you are HIV negative and worry you might be at risk for HIV infection, find out if PrEP is a good choice for you.
