

REVERSING THE OPIOID CRISIS IN VULNERABLE COMMUNITIES

Overview

The rising incidence of opioid use disorder, including heroin, illicit fentanyl, and prescription pain medication, is recognized as a serious and compelling public health issue. Federally Qualified Health Centers (FQHCs) serve vulnerable patient populations, including patients who are at high risk for opioid use disorder. Additionally, the Hudson Valley and Suffolk County, where Hudson River Health Care (HRHCare) operates, are facing an acute heroin and illicit fentanyl epidemic.

The opioid crisis poses a significant human and fiscal toll: national estimates suggest that for every opioid death, there are 15 substance use disorder treatment admissions, 26 emergency room visits, and additional health care utilization related to opioid use disorder, generating an excess of $4 million dollars in costs that could be avoided. HRHCare is a state and national leader in Medication Assisted Treatment (MAT) – which is demonstrated to significantly reduce odds of death, reduce avoidable health care utilization, and educate health care providers in effective means of delivering treatment in community health center settings.

Our Work

- + HRHCare provides an evidence-based MAT program that includes ongoing motivational interviewing; case conferencing; embedded case management; ongoing monitoring; opioid overdose prevention education; treatment with buprenorphine and naltrexone; harm reduction education; and referrals, where appropriate
- + Patients in the HRHCare MAT program are supported by interdisciplinary teams, including a MAT provider, social worker, LPN, care manager, regional MAT Managers, and a Medical Director
- + HRHCare has received federal funds to expand treatment of opioid use disorders in underserved populations, which has enabled MAT expansion to our Beacon, Peekskill, Yonkers, Monticello, Brentwood, Wyandanch, Shirley, and Riverhead sites
- + HRHCare clinical leaders hold positions on New York State DOH advisory bodies, such as the HIV Quality Advisory Committee, SUD Guidelines Committee, and Buprenorphine Advisory Workgroup, which inform best practices in substance use disorder treatment and associated clinical conditions
